

Members' personal information: privacy notice

The European Union's GDPR will replace the Data Protection Act 1998 and will become law in the UK on 25 May 2018. Even though the United Kingdom is leaving the EU in March 2019 the UK government has made it clear that UK law on data protection will continue to mirror EU requirements.

The GDPR updates data protection for the digital age. There are now new rights for data subjects – you and I – and new obligations for organisations acting as processors or controllers.

The law requires all bodies holding personal information data to keep track of personal data and to have proven audit trails of the processing of such information. The paramount requirement is to safeguard personal data so that only those authorised may access it.

There is no requirement for the Aldgate Ward Club to be registered with the Information Commissioner's Office as a processor, but we do have to comply with the GDPR as law. This privacy notice aims to set out how the Club processes your data, and your rights in relation to it.

All personal data is controlled by the elected officers personally and is only used for the operation of the Club's affairs. It is only made available to others with the consent of the member for specific Club purposes.

Members' information is held in a secure computer database in England and cannot be accessed by anybody else other than our computer support team.

All data held has been provided by the member or is a matter of public record.

Some information about members may be placed in a directory of members which is available online only to other members in a passworded area of the Club's website.

There are no circumstances in which information about a member would be revealed to any third party unless the member had specifically authorised the Club to do so.

The data held for each member and who else may see it is shown overleaf.

Until the Club can provide self-service functionality on-line, once a year, every member will be sent a copy of the personal information held for them and will have the opportunity to update it or to correct any errors. In addition, any member may request a copy of their personal information at time and the Club will make no charge for providing this.

Overleaf is a data flow table showing what data we hold on our members, and how we process it.

If you have any questions on the Club's use of your data, please do not hesitate to contact me.

The Club will be grateful for your completion and return of the consent form attached to this notice.
